

The Responsible Procurement Policy applies to all purchases of products and services made by any of the companies or entities of the OHLA Group, thus covering all suppliers and contractors of the Group. We also expect that said suppliers and contractors transmit the contents of this policy to their own subcontractors.

To this end, the OHLA Group (through the purchasing departments of the Group) has established the following commitments in its relationships with suppliers and contractors:

- Strict compliance with current legislation in all territories where the Group operates.
- Professional integrity and business ethics in the relationships with suppliers and contractors.
- Promotion of a sustainable business practice promoting stable business relationships that enable economic, social and environmental sustainability.
- Equal opportunities, transparency and accuracy of information, through free competition in its contracting processes creating the conditions that permit the selection of the suppliers by way of objective, transparent and balanced selection criteria.
- Confidentiality and protection of personal data, applying the necessary mechanisms to preserve its integrity, availability and confidentiality.
- Promote and encourage purchasing from local suppliers and contractors to impulse the business network and create jobs in the communities with which they are related.
- Fluid dialog and communication with its suppliers and contractors.

These commitments are complemented by following the “Ethical Principles of relationships with suppliers”.

Lastly, the OHLA Group will facilitate the responsible performance of its suppliers and the construction of a mutually beneficial relationship with them through the dissemination of the Code of Ethics of the company, the present Responsible Procurement Policy and the principals of the Global Pact.
